Entered at the post office at Canal Point, Fla., as second class matter.

KEATHLEY BOWDEN,
Editor and Editor.

PAUL BARDIN,
Managing Editor.

There are a few men in public life ready to resign if they fail to accomplish their undertaking but we don't know their names.

One reason for his times is that the average family can buy twice as much as the reputed head of the house can pay for.

If you want the community to laugh at you just take yourself too seriously and get the idea that you think is very important.

Our own idea for a debate: "Resolved, That a Man Can Become a Bigger Pool Owner Than a Woman Can Become Over a Man."

Everybody agrees that there are too many big game fatter in Florida but the living do nothing about it and the dead can't.

Personally, we have no hope that everybody will agree with our ideas and rather hope that some specimens of humanity will find them obnoxious.

Why not make your plans now to attend the play to be presented in the school auditorium in Puhokee next Tuesday evening. Proceeds from the play will go for a worthy cause—the high school library.

The Parent-Teacher association is sponsoring the evening's entertainment and earnestly hopes for the cooperation of the entire public.

The Everglades News extends the glad hand of welcome to its newest neighbors—the Arundel corporation. Today workmen are busy moving the office building.

Concern about the lot right next door to our office. They have started a big house and we have to move from our favorite chair to what is going on across the canal.

It will not be many days now until the water will be in op-

WA funds the successful in the modern at the most modern to-date water systems to found in the state. The completion of the system and inception of its service the officials are the hearty congratulations.

Just to prove to you that folks still believe in building and believe in it strong enough to donate all their money—take a look at the new Methodist church going up in Puhokee. Rapid progress is being made and the Methodist congregation is happy that they have received the wholehearted cooperation of the citizenry at large.

Right now it looks like the long cold spell has at last broken. Old timers in the Everglades state that it's one of the longest cold spells within their memory. For a little over two weeks cold winds and frosts have kept the "growsers" up in the air. We try to make the best of it. The larger part of them have gone along steadily with their work, despite the threatening weather. It is that spirit that has brought the Everglades to the front as a great vegetable producing territory.

WATCH THE ADVERTISER

When a citizen opens a business in the Everglades he has a right to look for the cordial co-operation of all citizens here. They should, as far as business judgment warrants, give him their business. Let every good citizen bear this in mind.

Advertisers in the Everglades

News are those business men who insist that you come to see them.

Every time they put an advertisement in our columns they are public to judge their merits. No merchant who refuses to think he has goods as loyal boosters for the Everglades is the business of every Everglades builder to see whether he is right before giving business to other sections.

ABOUT EDUCATION

There are a number of readers of this newspaper who have not had the privilege of attending the Everglades school. Some of them, no doubt, are of the idea that they are not "educated." They may be right, and they may be wrong. Education is not a question of going through any school or college, or university.

One of the prime accomplishments of an educated man, as we think it, is to be able to get along intelligently with his fellow man and a willingness, as well as the ability, to get along with other members of the social group.

No matter how much a man may know, or how many degrees he may have, he is far from educated if he is unable to meet his neighbors on common ground and work together for the common good.

There are readers of this newspaper who have never seen the inside of a college, who, nevertheless, are better educated than many degree-holders. They may have a little bit short on education in of a certain type, but they are long on common sense and they have picked up enough information to be able to cooperate.

This article is not to disparage education. It is rather to encourage those who cannot go to college. Let them keep up, as best they can, with current affairs, read as much as they can about subjects they do not know and never forget that true education is what a man learns and makes his own, not what he gets out of a book merely for the purposes of making a recitation that will pass him.

When they told me there was a guy in the Fair Grounds at the found out that it was a real Newark, Ohio, Advocate: "I'm staying in Belle Glade; well, the next thing is, am I better off for that? Is Belle Glade any better off for that? Yes, misses Howard and Sharp in the Everglades News. The deduction that he makes is that the important thing is to do the thing right at hand, take care of the things in your own home, on your own land, on your own lot, in your own book, then if you have any time left, spread out.

This sounds like pretty good philosophy. It is a rather sensib-ling question for one to ask himself if his home town is any better for numbering him among its citizens. It should be humiliating to be compelled to acknowledge that it is not. It is not necessary to be prominent publicly to be an asset to one's city. If one follows the example of Mr. Howard and Sharp, and creates a beautiful garden, keeps his premises in order, makes a home pleasant and healthy, is refreshing to the eye, he is a citizen to grapple to the heart of his home town with looks of steel.

What a characterless and inane place Newark would be were it not for the success of its citizens as possessed of such a love of beauty that it demands expression. The

FLOOD FIELDS

The Glenside Farms are experimenting with the flooding of their bean fields before planting in order to give sufficient moisture for the germination of the seed, 40 acres, in 20 acre blocks, are now being treated in this way.

They have also flooded their asparagus fields in order to give sufficient moisture for the culture of this expensive winter vegetable. They now have 80 acres of asparagus under cultivation. This vegetable, on account of the difficulty of its culture in this climate and the heavy expense attached to it, is very rarely grown in Florida.

H. B. Danks has recently completed a horse barn on the Glenside Farms which contains two box stalls, single stalls, feed bins and a harness room. It is understood that the management is buying a number of horses to be used in the cultivation of the asparagus.

California Embargo
On Florida Citrus Off After 19 Years

AINESVILLE, Fla.—Concurrence of negotiations between the State Plant Board of Florida and the California Department of Agriculture, resulting in admission into California of Florida citrus fruits for the first time since 1916, last week brought to the Plant Board headquarters here many letters of congratulations on the achievement and numerous requests from growers and shippers for full information.

Grapefruit and oranges for California destinations hereafter can be shipped from Florida when certified by the State Plant Board, which the California officials have authorized to supervise treatment and furnish inspection they regard as necessary safeguards against possible disease transmission.

Methods that the California authorities have specified in this connection are simple, reasonable and comparatively inexpensive, according to Dr. Wilmon Newell, Florida plant commissioner.

Advices giving the required procedure in detail have been prepared for some 300 Florida citrus shipping firms. Telegrams and letters requesting the data began to reach the State Plant Board offices in this city within a few hours after the official announcement that the California embargo had been lifted.

Florida departments of the Florida Citrus Exchange and Chase and Company were among the first of the marketing agencies to ask for the information. Growers' associations and transportation companies in considerable number also were prompt in seeking the facts.

Quarantine under which California citrus fruits are shipped, declared in 1916, was because of citrus canker, then prevailing in this state, and melange. Demand for fruit from Florida on the part of the Pacific Coast people continued nevertheless, and attempts at smuggling into California of the product were frequently reported.

Florida grapefruit in canned form on the West Coast had developed into large proportions during the past few years. In normal seasons, the opening of the California markets to the fresh Florida output will furnish an outlet for sizable quantities, trade surveys have indicated.

When it became an established fact that citrus canker had been eradicated from Florida, several factors, the State Plant Board modification of the California regulations barring fruit production, in the course of the negotiations that followed, California lemons and oranges were admitted to Florida, at certain seasons and under restrictions protecting the groves of this state from pests and diseases they do not now have. California came when the part of California citrus when the revisions in its quarantine, allowing Florida fruits to come in if similar precautions had been taken, proposed by Commissioner of Agriculture Brock had received the approval of Governor Marrion.

MARKETING OF FLORIDA PRODUCTS NOW DEMANDS GREATER CONSIDERATION

"The time has arrived when growers of Florida fruits and vegetables must give most serious consideration to problems connected with marketing their products. Hazardous methods have drained the state of its justly deserved profits long enough. It is time for a little straight thinking and intelligent action."

We spend a vast amount of time, labor and money in the production of our crops, and then send them to market with a "kick and a promise" and a prayer that we will not receive freight bills for them when they are sold. Most of us admit that present selling arrangements are not satisfactory, but outside of a lot of talking, only a few of us are doing anything about it. And the situation is capable of being remedied, at least to a certain extent, by ourselves.

On every hand more cooperation is urged. Perhaps it would help. But cooperative marketing is not the only panacea for our ills.

In the first place, we must produce a crop of the type which the market wants. If the demand shifts from flat headed to round headed cabbage, for instance, then we should shift over and grow the round heads.

In the second place, we can do much more in the way of making our products attractive when they arrive on the market. We can trim up loose leaves and otherwise increase the neatness of our packages.

In the third place, we can use better packages and load them better in the cars, so that they will arrive on the market in good condition. An investigator from the State Experiment Station spent several days in New York some time ago and saw the Florida produce as they arrived on the market. Broken hampers and crates were not uncommon. A large crew of men is maintained at the railroad terminal for the purpose of reconditioning these broken crates. Recouped products always sell for less at the auction. And to the farmer, by far the greater part of the recuperating necessary was with Florida products, both vegetables and citrus.

A little serious consideration given the package and packaging situation right now should pay big dividends. For heavy products, the hamper is fast being replaced by the crate.

Fourth and last, every care should be taken to ship to honest commission men and other dealers who will give us a fair break when our products arrive at the terminal markets.

Kissimmee Gazette: One of the most significant trends in advancing, or prolonging human life is the stress that is being laid on periodical health examinations. There are many diseases that only because of ignorance they exist. People think they are well and for that reason ignore the sound advice of leading physicians that they allow themselves to be examined regularly by thoroughly trained and scientific men.

Save Feet—Don't

"Single Barreled" Remedies.

Today many types of local skin diseases are rampant. One of the most common is "Athlete's Foot," the "toe" or "toe" disease. It is caused by a parasite, often the cause, but the result may be a real trouble from the "toe" or "toe" disease.

In many cases, there is a mixed infection. Because the presence of one germ makes it easier for another to get in, the sure way to get rid of the "toe" or "toe" disease is to use a medicine which kills both types of parasites. Don't take chances with "single barreled" remedies.

In addition to "Athlete's Foot," ringworm, impetigo, ground itch, scabies, and many other skin diseases are caused by any one of local skin infections. A.C.M. is a powerful, reliable, and safe remedy. It is a powerful, reliable, and safe remedy. It is a powerful, reliable, and safe remedy.
